Commercial Development

When the Lowry Air Force Base closed in 1994, the cities of Denver and Aurora lost 7,000 jobs and $295 million in annual spending overnight. The Lowry Redevelopment Authority was given two major objectives for commercial development:

1. Replace the jobs lost when the former base closed
2. Create a commercial tax base to pay for municipal services.

The Lowry Community Reuse Plan called for 2 million square feet of new and renovated commercial space to help achieve these goals. By 2005, more than 100 organizations have located at Lowry, with more on the way. More than 6,000 people are employed at Lowry. With buildout expected by 2009, Lowry will achieve its commercial reuse goals.
